

Chicken

From North and South America, Europe, Asia, Australia, and Africa

Birds

What's on your mind?

Did you know that there are more chickens on Earth than people?! The oldest chicken was 16 years old! My egg colors are brown, white, blue, and green.

Share

Wall

Info

Photos

Friends

White, black, brown, red, orange, bronze, gray, and cream are colors I can be. Some patterns I can be are striped, splash spotted, laced, and speckled. The combs, the things on top of my head, types are butter cup, single, walnut, rose, v-shaped, and pea. Some extra effects I may have are poofs of feathers on top of my head, fluffy feathers, and feathered feet.

I like to eat fruit, insects, berries, seeds, vegetables, grass, grains, and the food people make for me. I'm an omnivore so when I'm outside I usually scratch for bugs. One food the people give me is oyster shells, to harden my eggs.

My house is called a chicken coop or a hen house that has a big door (for a person) and a small door used by me. Inside there's straw, hay, or shavings on the floor. There are nest boxes where I lay my eggs and perches for sleeping. Outside of my home there's usually a fence to protect me from predators unless I'm free range.

Turkeys

Cows

Pheasants

Rebecca
April 7, 2016